Yes, the world can be an overwhelming place. We might have an emotional experience of being overwhelmed. We can experience the 'too much on' of workload - too much to do and not enough time in which to do it. Or we might feel like we're submerged under an endless pile of information, reports, books and reading. At other times we can just be plain 'drowning in it', from a wicked combination of all three: emotions, workload and information. In today's world, it's these three that can be the cause of repeated and unending overwhelm. And it's not good for us. Burn-out and health issues are waiting. We need to find ways to acknowledge our emotions, manage our workload, and filter all of that information. Our overwhelm CAN be outsmarted. Using the powerful techniques shared by Lynne Cazaly, you'll find new ways to make sense of overwhelm, new ways to work, and new ways to cope with information. You'll be all over overwhelm... it won't be all over you.

Four old school friends have a pact: to meet up every year in the small town in Puglia they grew up in. Art, the charismatic leader of the group and creator of the pact, insists that the agreement must remain unshakable and enduring. But this year, he never shows up. A visit to his house increases the friends' worry; Art is farming marijuana. In Southern Italy doing that kind of thing can be very dangerous. They can't go to the Carabinieri so must make enquiries of their own. This is how they come across the rumours about Art; bizarre and unbelievable rumours that he miraculously cured the local mafia boss's daughter of terminal leukaemia. And among the chaos of his house, they find a document written by Art, The Book of Hidden Things, that promises to reveal dark secrets and wonders beyond anything previously known. Francesco Dimitri's first novel written in English, following his career as one of the most significant fantasy writers in Italy, will entrance fans of Elena Ferrante, Neil Gaiman and Donna Tartt.
