The plaintiffs, who were slave traders, bought a slave from the defendant, and took a bill of sale stating that they had paid [dollars] 2,000 for a negro boy named Allen. Whilst it was alleged in a verbal affirmation that he was aged 26, he was actually 34 or 35. The court held with regard to the bill of sale there was no actual warranty as to the age of the slave: that instrument does not contain a warranty as to the age. Verdict for defendant confirmed. 106 164 File No. 1015

More than any other people on earth, we Americans are free to say and write what we think. The press can air the secrets of government, the corporate boardroom, or the bedroom with little fear of punishment or penalty. This extraordinary freedom results not from America's culture of tolerance, but from fourteen words in the constitution: the free expression clauses of the First Amendment.

In Freedom for the Thought That We Hate, two-time Pulitzer Prize-winner Anthony Lewis describes how our free-speech rights were created in five distinct areas—political speech, artistic expression, libel, commercial speech, and unusual forms of expression such as T-shirts and campaign spending. It is a story of hard choices, heroic judges, and the fascinating and eccentric defendants who forced the legal system to come face to face with one of America's great founding ideas. Vols. 65-96 include "Central law journal's international law list." United States Reports Volume 567
